

Celebrate National Women's Health Week this year
by participating in the first-ever
National Women's Check-Up Day on May 12, 2003.

WHAT is National Women's Check-Up Day?

As part of National Women's Health Week 2003, the U.S. department of Health and Human Services is sponsoring the first ever National Women's Check-Up Day. On this day, community health centers, hospitals, and other health providers across America will encourage women to come in for preventive health services.

WHEN and WHERE will it be held?

National Women's Check-Up Day will occur on May 12, 2003, at community health centers and clinics throughout the nation. For a complete list of participating centers visit www.4woman.gov/whw.

WHY was it created?

To help underserved women gain access to important preventive health care services and to expand health care services for people without health insurance through local health centers.

HOW can I participate?

Health care providers across the country are invited to participate in National Women's Check-Up Day 2003. If you are interested in participating, register on-line at www.4woman.gov/whw or call (202) 690-7651.

Women are encouraged to call their health care providers to schedule an appointment for a preventive health check-up on this day and to call the Office on Women's Health, National Women's Health Information Center (NWHIC), at 1-800-994-WOMAN for a free prevention package. Information on providers who have registered their services for National Women's Check-Up Day is also available at this toll-free number or on-line at www.4woman.gov/whw.
